

The Modern Geography of Kaurath

Kaurath is complex in its geography. It is a kingdom of kingdoms with many nations within its massive mountainous borders. The Kingdom, or High Kingdom to be more accurate, is enormous. With a distance of roughly Twelve-Hundred and Fifty miles from the western most bank of the Lansi River to the eastern mountain ranges of Harcos and Twelve-Hundred miles long from Etelamuuri to the southern most tip of the small kingdom of Rensvarvas the High Kingdom of Kaurath takes up a land mass of almost One-Million, One-Hundred and Forty Thousand square miles.

and Āmurs Akmens.

Ruler: High King Bulzaric Kaurathel

Capitol: Karsia Castle, Kaurath City, Haltia

Borders: Kaurath is located within the Kaura Valley, from the Eltor Mountains in the west to the Kalivan Mountains in the east, and from Etelamuuri in the south to the southern edge of the Kingdom of Rensvarvas in the north.

Size: Roughly 950 Miles Wide and 1,200 Miles Long with a total area of roughly 1,140,000 square miles.

Nations Contained: Twelve: the Kaurathel, the Vaeltaa, the Vorlonal, Seannaught, Briar Hollow, Innos Halal, the Gythainen, the Ograth, the Razioch, Malmiheim,

The Four Provinces

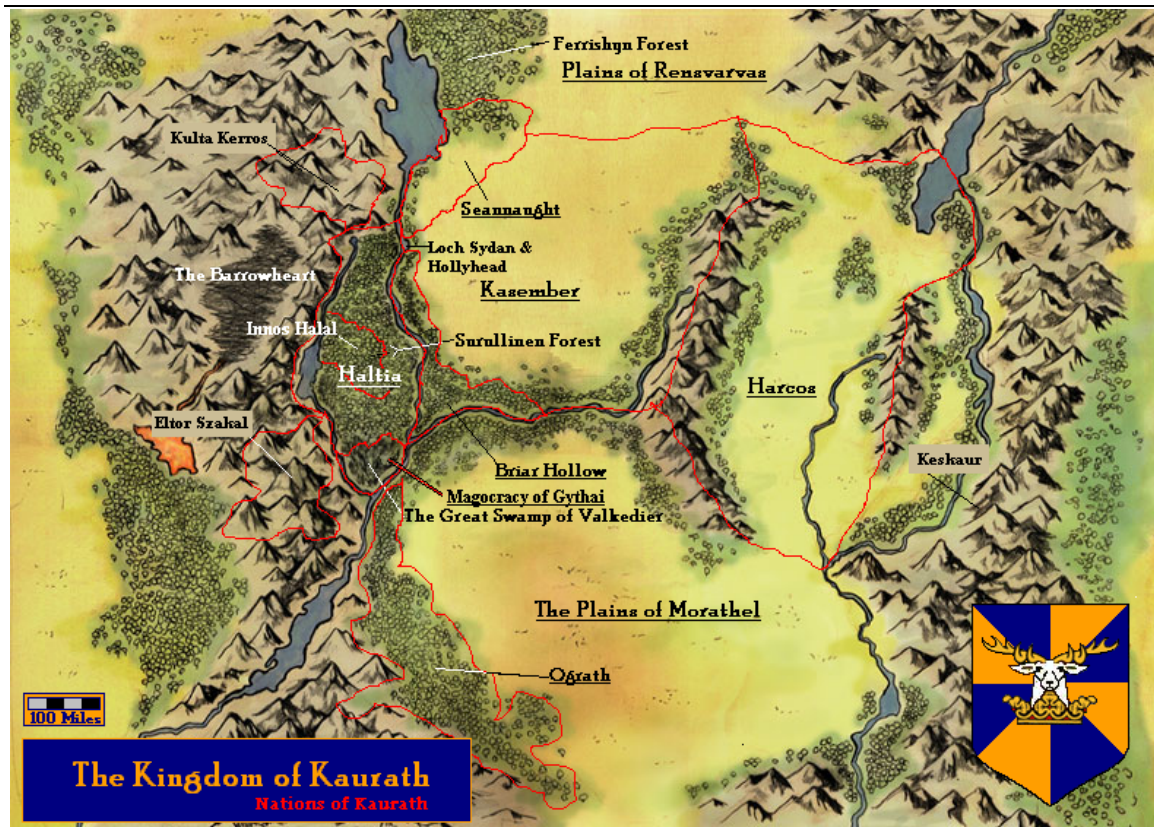

To govern such a massive area the High Kingdom is divided into four main provinces, the forested province of Haltia, the rolling hills of Kasember, the wilds of Harcos, and the devastation of the Plains of Morathel. The four provinces are each led by a Royal Peer. The local government in the provinces comes from the many Noble estates scattered throughout the provinces and the kingdoms and nations who swear fealty to the High King.

The kingdoms and nations of the High Kingdom can be found throughout the four provinces of Kaurath. The Provinces of Haltia contains the kingdom of Innos Halal, Āmurs Akmens, and the Magocracy of Gythai, Kasember contains the hobbling nations of Seannaught, and Briar Hollow, as well as Malmiheim Harcos is made of the ancient barbarian kingdom of the Vorlonal, the Plains of Morathel which hold the nations of Ograth and the Razioch, and the nations of the Kaurathel and the Vaeltaa can be found in all provinces.

The High Kingdom has many neighbors. The dwarven kingdoms of Kulta Kerros and Eltor Szakall lie to the north and south of the province of Haltia and have strong relations with the High Kingdom and the nomadic Ferrishyn of the Kingdom of Rensvarvas lie to the north of Kasember and often trade with the Vaeltaa of the Province of Kasember. Lastly the Elven Kingdom of Keskaur lie to the east of the province of Harcos. While not allies of the Kaurath, they keep to themselves and to not prove hostile.

The Barrowheart lies deep within the mountains east of Haltia and proved to be the most constant threat to the High Kingdom. A nation of horror, the Barrowheart was a threat to all of the Northern Provinces until the final peace and their incorporation into the High Kingdom as 10th Kingdom in 616 (E.R.). Kaurathi Trolls prowl the mountains, and though they rarely enter settlements, when they do a single troll can cause utter devastation.

Kaurath is surrounded by water of all sides at some distance, except to the north where the previously poorly known north country also made the transition with the rest of Kaurath

The North Country has not been mapped well. We know due north of Rensvarvas was a range of impassable mountains and that stopped exploration in the past. Now a pass has been found and small groups have ventured north finding the Beyzor Imperium a land of elves with distinct patterns of skin tones and a lack of magic as well as their enemies, the Unmakers, who are assaulting the Imperium and its allies. We have also met the Veiled Traders noted for their unique garb.

The Royal Army is offering a bounty for producing a good map of Erümir or at least the area around Kaurath
